I am Rebekah Johnson. I currently attend Harrisburg Area Community College to complete my Web Design AAS Degree. I also work part-time as a Store Team Member at my local Sheetz. As I graduate, I am searching for a job in my chosen field. Using my artistic skills to assist others reach their creative goals is important to me. My passions lie in the arts and I have taken a wide variety of classes, from architecture, theater, and to three-dimensional art. Web design has been one of the most effective ways of using my skills to produce something I am passionate about. I have familiarized myself with many programs and coding languages in my college studies.

In my work life, I could be described as an excellent team player. When I worked as a store supervisor, I learned the importance of communication. Running the store taught me how to come up with creative solutions to problems that may arise while maintaining a positive attitude and a cool head. Balancing my supervisor responsibilities and my college classwork was hard work, and I continued to be on the Dean's List for HACC.

I live in New Oxford, Pennsylvania with my family. I enjoy travel, and would someday want to travel outside of North America. I familiarize myself with popular trends on social media in my free time. My personal hobbies tend to be a bit more "nerdy", however these hobbies aid me in honing more creative skills. Dungeons and Dragons, for example, can be used in exploration of characters for acting. I practice drawing characters with a tablet on photoshop. All my hobbies tie back into an interest in art and creation.

I look forward to talking to you!
